

NEWS RELEASE

INPA Magazine Well Received

September saw the first full issue of INPA hit the streets and has been extremely well received across the leisure, play and activity sector.

One operator of bouncy castles told INPA "I found this issue to be the best yet. I was particularly interested in the information on indoor play as I am looking at opening an indoor play centre next year."

Ray Smith from Old Macdonald's farm attraction in Brentwood said "We really enjoyed the last issue of INPA, which is unusual for a trade paper! Thought the mix of news and information was very good and it covers a wide range of facilities as well as topics."

Steve Barlow from Huff 'N' Puff inflatables said "I found INPA an extremely interesting read and it opens your eyes to the cross over between the different sections. I found it interesting that weather affects the bouncy castle operator and indoor play centres but from totally opposite directions. I want the sun they want the rain."
